Alife is an independent creative collective based in the lower east side of New York City. Founded in October of 1999, alife has consistently worked with up and coming artists on projects ranging from product development to publishing books. The products in this exhibit are limited to objects that have been created by artists. This installation seconds as a working store and is going to be traveling to prestigious art centers around the world. It was launched by alife and Deitch Projects in December of 2002.
